

Family Snapshots

Looking for a photographer who can capture some natural and beautiful family portraits, while also keeping young ones happy and entertained? Our readers tell us about their experiences at three studios in Singapore.

White Room Studio

Ludovica Bianco and Michele Ferrario, Italian
Children: Matteo, Agnese and Luce

I (Ludovica) first came across White Room Studio on Facebook. I liked their portfolio so I decided to give them a call to enquire about their photoshoots. They were very responsive and professional from the moment I contacted them, and we really like that about them.

Our photoshoot took place at their studio, which is located on the second and third floor of a beautiful refurbished traditional shophouse in River Valley. Our shoot lasted for slightly over an hour and it was a lot of fun for our whole family. Our photographer Felicia was very professional and was able to engage the kids very well. She took hundreds of shots and let the kids play and do everything they wanted, resulting in beautiful and natural pictures. We were very comfortable in the studio – it felt like being at a friend's house! I even had time to feed my baby who fell asleep during the shoot.

What I liked most about the location of our photoshoot was having shots taken on the balcony. With Felicia's professional touch, it offered us the backdrop of beautiful tropical greenery, giving our photos an unforgettable Singapore touch. We would absolutely recommend other families to get their photos taken at White Room Studio. EL
